The following are a list of resources that have been suggested for use by teachers when engaging with media literacy concepts with students. These resources are not aligned to a specific media literacy concept, but are suggested for use in classrooms. We encourage teachers to obtain a firm grasp on a key media literacy competency to find ways to incorporate aspects of media literacy into their existing coursework. There are plenty of tools out there that we sure will be helpful, and we trust that teachers will know what will serve their students best. That said, this is a broad and living document that we hope to continue refining with you, over time.
